Dr. L. E. Sanford Gives Resume Of City Health Work

Annual Report of Health Officer, Showing 572 Cases of Whooping Cough and 181 Cases of Chickenpox During 1932—Past Year Was Fifth Consecutive Year Without a Death From Diphtheria.

The year 1932 was the fifth consecutive year without a death from diphtheria in Kingston, according to the annual report of Dr. L. E. Sanford, health officer, submitted at the meeting of the board of health Tuesday evening. However, there had been two cases of diphtheria reported in the city. Mayor Eugene B. Carey presided at the meeting with Drs. Jacobson, Holcomb and Hill absent. It was stated that Dr. Jacobson was in New York, Dr. Holcomb in Albany and Dr. A. L. Hill was in Florida.

Aside from hearing Dr. Sanford's annual report and auditing bills no other matters came up for action. Dr. Sanford's report follows:

The city has been particularly fortunate during the year 1932, in that it has had no serious epidemics. The only diseases occurring in any numbers were whooping cough with 572 cases and chickenpox with 181 cases. Most of these were mild and there was no deaths.

The weekly toxin antitoxin clinic was held throughout the year. There were 319 children protected and 236 during 1932. We have had two cases of diphtheria, one adult and one child. No deaths. This is the fifth consecutive year without a death from diphtheria. There was only one case of typhoid fever. No deaths.

Six vaccination clinics have been held. 112 children have been vaccinated. Of this number, 105 were under the age of six years. If all children were vaccinated before they entered school there would be small chance of another outbreak of smallpox as occurred in 1931.

The weekly clinics for the treatment of Syphilis have been held throughout the year. 666 treatments have been given in 1932 in comparison with 311 during 1931. Of these 23 were males and 33 females. All were cases that could not afford private treatment and many were referred to us by private physicians.

The clinic is constantly growing and it is of the greatest value to the community because of the fact that these who are treated are either cured or benefited to such an extent that they are little likelihood of their becoming city or state charges later on in life because of the ravages of the disease. Included under treatment have been many pregnant mothers who have later given birth to more healthy children and also a number of children in whom early treatment is of the greatest importance.

The milk supply of the city has been good through the year and has not been the medium of conveyance of any disease. This is saying a great deal because during the present period of economic stress it is sometimes difficult to keep up the same standards of milk production.

The water supply is excellent and has been no means of transmission of disease. The bringing of city water to all homes within the city limits is a goal to be approached in the future.

During the year many new sewer projects have been considered. Several outside toilets have been done away with and connections made with street sewers or septic tanks installed. No doubt sometime all streets will be adequately sewered.

During the spring and summer months a very large number of complaints were attended to by the sanitary inspector and all arguments affecting public health peacefully settled. Inspection of stores, markets, bakeries, barber shops, restaurants, etc. have been kept up to date. We have insisted that all sanitary laws be complied with at the same time using tact and trying not to interfere with anyone's rights to earn a livelihood.

The inspection of all meats slaughtered in the city has continued and all meats sold here bear either a federal or local inspectors stamp. Altogether the health and sanitary conditions of Kingston would compare very well with any city of its size within the state.

New projects which might be considered in the future are: building of an incinerator to take care of the city refuse, thus doing away with the city dumps. Garbage reduction plant to take care of city garbage. A sewage treatment plant where the city sewage might be treated, thus taking the contamination from Rondout Creek.

Too Many Oranges No Good, Says Shervy

Man Found Stupefied From Drinking Branded Alcohol Told Police He Had Come From South Where He Had Been Living on Oranges—Still at Hospital.

William Shervy of South Troy, the man found stupefied from drinking denatured alcohol, is still at the Kingston Hospital and it is expected that he will not be discharged from there for several days at which time he will be arraigned in police court on a charge of public intoxication. Shervy said he had relatives in South Troy and the police department got in touch with the Troy police and Tuesday afternoon received a reply stating that the Shervy family said their finances were so low that they could do nothing to aid the Shervy in the hospital here.

Shervy told the police that he had left home some time ago and had been south. There he had been forced to live mostly on oranges and as a result he said his stomach went bad on him. He said he drank the denatured alcohol to keep warm.

James Morris of Morristown, N. J., arrested here Tuesday on a charge of panhandling on Broadway was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail in police court today.

Verdict of No Cause In Assault Action

Brought By Vernon Roosa of New Paltz Against Bernard Schultz—Connolly-Doyle Action Settled.

A verdict for defendant of no cause of action was returned this morning in county court in the assault action brought by Vernon Roosa of New Paltz against Bernard Schultz of Kingston. Roosa sought to recover damages for an alleged assault which he claimed took place at Port Ewen on January 23 last at the Van Gonic Brothers garage where both parties were employed. Defendant denied that he assaulted the plaintiff and claimed that the plaintiff started the trouble and that he acted in self defense. Peter H. Harp appeared for plaintiff and Chris J. Flanagan for defendant.

No. 10, James Connolly against Timothy J. Doyle, an action on contract, was announced as ready and Clerk Simpson started to draw a jury. When eight jurors were in the box the parties to the action entered into a conference and it resulted in settlement without trial. The eight jurors were excused and a recess was taken in order to summon counsel in the following actions. N. LeVan Haver appeared for Connolly and Francis T. Murray for defendant Doyle.

Two negligence actions, Gustav Teicher and Walter S. Wells against Irving J. Peet were next on the calendar for trial. Judge Traver recessed the court for half an hour in order to give Mr. Howard time to reach the court house. Robert J. Howard appeared for the plaintiffs and N. LeVan Haver for the defendant.

There will be no additions to the day calendar until Friday morning.

Expect Many at Shriners' Ball

The members of the Kingston Shriners' Association are delighted at the manner in which the public is responding to their appeal to patronize their annual ball to be held this Friday evening in the new armory for the benefit of the children of the Industrial Home.

From every indication a record breaking crowd will be in attendance and that the ball will prove a fine social success seems assured.

The Shriners are particularly pleased at the manner in which every one is cooperating with them to make the ball a success as everyone seems to realize that the Industrial Home can use to great advantage every dollar raised by this affair.

No one should experience any trouble in reaching the new armory as it is directly at the end of Manor avenue and all the roads leading to it are in excellent condition. The belt line bus will discharge passengers, for Friday evening only, directly in front of the new armory.

"Bond Currency" Is Dakota Suggestion
Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 18 (AP).—In support of "bond currency" is suggested for North Dakota in a bill before the House of Representatives introduced by H. T. Peterson of Montana county.

Control Commission To Begin Work Today

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 18 (AP).—New York state's new beer and liquor control commission was ready to begin functioning today.

Created yesterday by the legislature and with its nine members already appointed by Governor Lehman and the legislative leaders, the commission prepared to buckle down to do its work of advising the legislature before February 15 how best it can control the sale and distribution of beverages now prohibited, if they should be legalized.

Its membership drawn from all parts of the state, the commission includes a former judge, a former lieutenant governor, a soldier, a physician, a woman, two legislators, a banker and a representative of labor and brewing interests.

One of its first considerations after it selects a chairman will be a study of the methods by which New York might pour millions of dollars from beer taxation into its sadly depleted treasury, whose managers are faced with a possible shortage in revenues of $160,000,000 or more by July 1.

The commission bill, passed unanimously by the Democratic Senate on Monday night and overwhelmingly approved yesterday by the Republican-controlled assembly, was almost immediately signed by Governor Lehman. The Governor at once announced his commissioners and said he would call them together for a formal meeting within a few days.

Including the two members appointed by the majority leaders in the Senate and Assembly, the commission membership is:

Judge William S. Andrews, Syracuse, former judge of the state's high court and the Court of Appeals. Judge Andrews has been mentioned as a likely choice for the chairmanship.

Thomas F. Conway, Plattsburg, former lieutenant governor. Joseph S. Fischer, Buffalo, vice-president of the Marine Trust Company and former president of the Catholic Charities of Buffalo.

Dr. Simon Flexner, New York city, director of the Rockefeller Institute of medical research. Major General John F. O'Ryan, New York city, former commander of the New York National Guard.

Mr. John S. Sheppard, New York city, author of the "Sheppard Liquor Control Plan" based partly on a study of foreign liquor control systems. Mrs. Sheppard is also state chairman of the women's organization for National Prohibition Reform.

John Sullivan, New York city, president of the State Federation of Labor and identified as a representative of brewers' organizations. Senator John F. Buckley, Manhattan Democrat and co-sponsor of the commission bill, appointed by Senator John J. Dunnigan, Democratic majority leader.

Assemblyman Harry F. Dunkel of the Fulton-Hamilton district, a Republican, named by Assemblyman Joseph A. McGinnies, Republican speaker of the lower house.

The Democratic governor appointed two Republicans, Judge Andrews and Mrs. Sheppard. Earlier in the month he had refused to appoint a representative "dry," saying such an appointment would be "illogical."

STILL HOPEFUL THAT PLANE MAY BE FOUND.
Troy, N. Y., Jan. 18 (AP).—Still hopeful that her husband and six other passengers in a missing South American transport plane will be found, Mrs. F. E. Camus, young mother of two children, was at her parents' home today after many weary weeks of waiting in Chile.

Although the wife of the former manager of the Panama-American Grace Line Airways at Santiago, Chile, has come home from South America, she said today she buoyed her hope on the searchings of a lone Englishman, whom she knows as "Barrington."

Barrington, she said, is relentlessly pursuing on foot his quest in the rough terrain between Chile and Argentina for traces of the plane which vanished last year while flying from Santiago to Mendoza, Argentina. The ship was last seen flying eastward over Las Cuevas, 10 miles from the Chilean border, on the stormy day it disappeared.

DOMESTIC ALLIOTMENT BILL GETS ATTENTION
Washington, Jan. 18 (AP).—The much discussed "Domestic Allotment" farm relief bill was laid on an operating table in a senate committee room today with indications that some of its principal provisions would be amended.

Hops, tobacco, dairy products, peanuts and rice, all faced the prospect of being cut off as a result of action from President-Elect Roosevelt that he favored confining the Democratic measure to wheat and cotton.

Arthur L. Colligan, District Manager Of Central Hudson

Mr. Colligan Has Been Appointed to Replace John R. Meehan, Who Was Granted a Leave of Absence Due to Ill Health.

Arthur L. Colligan has been appointed district manager of the Kingston District of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation, in accordance with an announcement made today by Ernest R. Acker, president of the company. Mr. Colligan replaced John R. Meehan, recently granted an extended leave of absence due to ill health.

Mr. Colligan is a graduate of Russell College Polytechnic Institute and has been employed by the company in various capacities since October 16, 1925, having served as operating superintendent of the Kingston District from July 1, 1927, to January 15, 1929. He has recently been located in Poughkeepsie as head of the Distribution Division of the Operating Department of the company.

Mr. Colligan is particularly qualified for his new position because of his previous service in the Kingston District and general experience in other departments of the company's business.

Dig "Coal Mine" in Residential Section

Chicago, Jan. 18 (AP).—They're digging a "coal mine" in the heart of the south side residential district.

The project is not an industrial one. It is the piece de resistance of working exhibits at the Museum of Science and Industry, founded by the late Julius Rosenwald to portray the technical ascent of man.

The museum will be opened May 1—taking the famous Deutsches Museum of Munich as its model, but it will go far further in its array of exhibits showing the complex processes that are the pulse beats of the industrial world.

Visitors won't have to keep their "hands off," they will press the buttons that put the models in motion. Director of the Museum Otto Kreusser today exhibited a working model of the mine, representing a typical colliery of the southern Illinois coal fields. It will give the public an intimate glimpse of mining.

Everything will be full-size—everything the visitor is able to see. For the rest, he will be fed illusion in a big way. The trickery, Kreusser said, is necessary to impress visitors that they have seen the whole show.

A mine tipple, 65 feet high will rise from the floor of the museum. Then begins the descent under ground. A cage will take 30 persons at a time into the pit which goes 25 feet below surface, but the journey apparently will be 500 feet. The walls of the shaft will move up as the cage stands still.

Below, visitors will see mining machinery at work, digging coal from the seams, carrying it through various stages in its journey to the surface. Some real coal will be scattered about the floor of the caverns, but the walls will be composed of synthetic material "fireproof" coal that's safe and won't raise laundry bills.

The characteristic dank, earthy smell will be present, also the typical noises.

Quits Senate Stock Probe, Blames Group

New York, Jan. 18 (AP).—Irving Ben Cooper, a young investigator trained in the Samuel Seabury school, has resigned as counsel to a United States Senate inquiry into stock market practices, but information from Washington today was that the inquiry would proceed.

In announcing his resignation last night, Cooper said Senator Peter G. Norbeck of South Dakota, chairman of the investigating committee, had denied him a "free hand." Norbeck, in Washington, said "the senatorial power could not be delegated."

The resignation is not important," Norbeck added. "The investigation will proceed."

Until yesterday Cooper apparently had been proceeding with the preparation of material for the inquiry, which was expected to delve deeply into the Kreuger & Toll and Insull bankruptcies. He was said also, the New York Times declared, to be seeking information on large income tax evasions.

AUTO DAMAGED CLANCY BUILDING AT PHOENICIA
About 2:30 o'clock Tuesday morning an automobile crashed into the Clancy building at Phoenicia, doing considerable damage. Evidently the automobile was not damaged to such an extent that it could not be operated for the driver after hitting the building stopped on the gas and sped away in the direction of Kingston.

MANY SILEX QUESTIONS ANNOY ZOO KEEPER
Detroit, Jan. 18 (AP).—The wild-eyed public interest in the habitat of the kinkajou, the name of the singing muskrat of Tibet, whether there is such a thing as a cough, and whether the napu wears fur or feathers is putting bags under the eyes of those fellows at Elmhurst 6427.

Elmhurst 6427 is the 'phone number of the Detroit Zoological Gardens, where Leo Galvin and John O. Burke are waging an uphill fight against the zoo to complete the annual zoo inventory.

Some 20 times a day Galvin and Burke wearily push back their ladders to explain to insistent voices at the other end of the telephone line that a "drill" can be a species of West African baboon as well as a dentist's implement.

In the midst of computing the piles of hay in the giraffe house, they have to stop to tell a puzzled citizen that a "ramster" is a rodent of the muridae, and not a dealer in smoked meats.

"It's these doggone crossword puzzle fans that give us the most trouble," said Galvin. "Why, the other day eight persons called to ask 'What is such an animal as an 'okapi'?' What am I? A galloping encyclopedia?"

They have to reply to queries like this: "I say kakapo is a kind of parrot. My wife says its the Australian word for 'good mornings.' Who's right, please?"

"Is caracara a bird or a medicine," "Is a gilet a young giraffe?" "My nerves are shot," said Burke. "People ought to have their dictionaries handy all the time. That's the way we're able to answer their questions, anyway."

REPUBLICAN CLUB ADOPTS RESOLUTION ON COOLIDGE

The National Republican Club, meeting last night at its headquarters, 54 West Fortieth street, New York city, adopted a resolution of regret at the death of Calvin Coolidge and of praise for his service to the United States.

"His rugged and upright character, the simplicity of his life, his stirring Americanism, his intense patriotism and his vigorous upholding of the fundamental principles upon which our government has been built and prospered are known to all and endeared him to all the people of the United States," the resolution read in part.

"The soundness of his judgment and the wisdom of his counsel during the trying times through which the United States is at present passing will not only be greatly missed, but constitute an irreparable national loss. His life, his character and his public service are a heritage prized by all our people and will serve as an example and inspiration to all of us and to future generations of Americans."

The resolution concluded with an expression of sympathy for Mrs. Coolidge. It was signed by Robert W. Bonnyne, J. Van Vechten Olcott and Philip Elling.

The Philippines May Accept Conditions Voted by Congress

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP).—The question of independence today was one for the 13,000,000 people of the Philippine Islands to decide and they probably will accept the conditions laid down by congress.

Despite some expressed opposition, there were indications that the transitional period would be taken by Filipino leaders as the best possible terms now obtainable and that the insular legislature would accept the independence bill enacted yesterday by congress.

Members of the Philippine independence mission here, composed of leaders of the island legislative body, said after the senate had voted, 65 to 27, to override President Hoover's veto:

"The full realization of the significance of this action will bring joy and happiness to the hearts of the Filipino people."

Objections from Manila have emanated from a faction that wants immediate and unrestricted freedom. President Manuel Quizon of the insular senate has sent word that he would come to Washington to satisfy himself that all had been done to obtain the best possible bill. Then he will decide what attitude he and his followers will take toward the ten-year measure.

The senate passed the bill over the objections of Mr. Hoover by five more than the necessary two thirds. The house voted 274 to 94 last week to set aside the veto and make the bill law.

Under the terms of the measure, the island legislature must accept it within one year and then fix a date for the election of delegates to a convention for the purpose of drafting a constitution.

The constitution must be acceptable to the President of the United States and also must be approved at a special island election—this vote to be the test of whether the Filipinos want freedom.

Then ten years of economic and political trial would begin, during which time immigration and free imports from the island to the United States would be reduced. Complete withdrawal of American sovereignty would follow on July 4 immediately after expiration of the ten-year transition period.

HOOPER PLEA FOR SALES TAX FALLS ON DEAF EARS

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP).—The plea of President Hoover for a balanced budget by enactment of a low general sales tax today fell on deaf ears in a Congress wrestling with farm relief, a rebellious filibuster and vital appropriation bills.

Party leaders agreed that the sales tax was dead for this session despite the strongly-worded special message the President sent to the Senate and House yesterday afternoon. In it he said:

"One of the most helpful contributions which the Congress and the administration could give to the next administration would be to enable them to start with the federal budget in balance and the federal finances in order."

At the same time Mr. Hoover said there would probably be a deficit between $500,000,000 and $700,000,000 for the next fiscal year unless new revenues were obtained and declared that in the House action toward reducing government expenditure had been "disappointing."

RAILROAD TO ISSUE 25-TRIP FAMILY TICKETS.

The tickets will be good for use within six months after date of purchase and will carry the same optional privileges as the present 50-trip tickets. They will be valid for use by the purchaser, members of the purchaser's family residing in the purchaser's household, or by domestic servants in his employ.

The tickets provide for transportation to and from New York and will be on sale at all stations on the Hudson Division between New York and Poughkeepsie, Harlem Division between New York and Chatham, Putnam Division between New York and Brewster, and River Division (West Shore Railroad) between New York and Kingston.

WYTHE PUPILS ENTERTAIN INDUSTRIAL HOME CHILDREN

A belated but happy Christmas party was given the children of the Industrial Home by Emma Wythe and her dancing pupils at her studio in the Eagle Hotel on Saturday afternoon last. The delay in giving this Noel party was due to the sickness that had claimed so many of the children. The 29 boy and girl guests were entertained with a delightful dance program of classical and modern numbers, all given in costume. Following the program all of the children gathered about the Christmas tree with its Noel fruit. Mrs. Wythe and the little folks were all very appreciative of the hospitality of Mr. Turck, which made the party possible.

Motor Fuel Tax Distribution Made

Albany, Jan. 17.—Certification that the fifty-seven counties of the state outside greater New York city were entitled to $1,535,224.71 as their share of the motor fuel tax for the three month period ending December 31, 1932, has been made by the State Tax Commission, of which Thomas M. Lynch is the head.

This latest quarterly distribution is some two hundred thousand dollars less than the amount distributed in October and approximately one hundred thousand dollars less than the counties received for their share in January a year ago. The city of New York in this latest allocation of state moneys will receive $384,981.

Steuben and St. Lawrence counties again receive the largest amounts, the first named county receiving $61,500 and the second, $59,800. Hamilton county received the smallest amount of money in the January distribution, its 238 miles of unimproved miles entitling it to approximately $6,100.

The rate of distribution was $21.427 a mile for the 71,700 miles of unimproved highways in the various counties. This compares with a rate of $22.903 a mile in January of last year, and $24.39 a mile for the October distribution.

The details of the allotment to Ulster and neighboring counties is as follows:

Nothing  to it

Nothing secret about this modern, new way of taking medicine. Just plain common-sense, putting it in chewing gum because, like food, a laxative needs to be chewed so insure even distribution throughout the digestive tract. And that's essential for thorough, gentle action without the gripping so common with pills and salts. Feen-a-mint is delicious—as safe for children as grown-ups because it's harmless and non-habit-forming. At all druggists.

"You don't have to drive over 40 to need the 100-mile-an-hour oil!"

YOU may like a pace that's safe and sane. You may never go faster than 40-miles-an-hour...

And still you need the 100-mile-an-hour motor oil—Gulf Supreme!

Why? Because the oil that is good at 100-miles-an-hour is doubly good at lesser speeds. Doubly able to give you good lubrication. It brings you extras no 60-mile-an-hour oil can give. Extra ability to conquer engine heat. Extra ability to halt wear. Extra richness. Extra stamina.

And proof of Gulf Supreme's extra "fighting quality" is its performance in two gruelling tests...

1. In the great Gulf laboratories, Supreme met the "oil killer" and won—successfully lubricated a testing motor developing nearly twice the heat of the normal speeding engine... for 14 hours!

2. At the famous Indianapolis Speedway, Supreme amazed racing drivers... In an Official AAA test, it successfully lubricated a roaring Duesenberg racer in a one-hour, non-stop run—at speeds which reached nearly two miles a minute! An average speed well over 100-miles-an-hour!

Cut lubrication cost! Change to Gulf Supreme now. Watch it lower repair bills... prolong your motor's life... and last longer! There's a grade for every climate.

WARNING!

... OIL that isn't good at high speeds, isn't good enough at ANY speed!

Begin Plans for Legion Stag Dinner

At a meeting of the committee in charge of the annual stag dinner of the Ulster County American Legion to be held at Golden Rule Inn, the date of Tuesday, February 28, was selected for this year.

This gathering of over 500 Legionnaires and their friends from all over the section of the state, has assumed an importance in State Legion circles rivaled only by the state legislature dinner held in Albany annually.

Golden Rule Inn was again selected as the place for holding the dinner this year because of its easy access and the splendid service the Legionnaires have received there in the previous stag dinners.

An innovation is planned for this year in the way of entertainment. Meyer Kaplan has been appointed in charge of the entertainment and will secure the services of Al Rogers, who guarantees the entertainment for the Astor Ball, to bring two or three high-class acts. Golden Rule Inn's famous orchestra will also be in attendance and music will be in order.

An invitation will be extended to the notable Paul Zucca to lead community singing.

The high-light of the affair will be, of course, the attendance of men from all walks of life—prominent men in Legion circles, including the state commander, in the professions, business and public office.

An invitation has been extended to President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt to attend and it is possible he may accept but since he has announced his intention of taking a complete rest at his Hyde Park home, it is problematical whether he will be there. Invitations will also be extended to other prominent men, including Joseph V. McKee, Gene Tunney and others.

Tickets are limited in number to 450 and all those wishing to attend would do well to secure their tickets in advance. Tickets can be secured from Ticket Chairman Morton Finch or any member of the committee in charge. Tickets will also be placed on sale at several convenient stores in Kingston.

The committee in charge of this year's dinner is as follows: Ticket, Morton Finch; arrangements at inn, J. Heiselman; treasurer, C. Kaplan; County Commander Robert K. Brown; A. J. Murphy and P. J. Belcher.

Big Attendance At Poultry Meeting

About 100 poultrymen from all parts of Ulster county met at the county court house Tuesday night to take part in one of the regular poultry club meetings, at which Dr. G. F. Heuser, of the State College of Agriculture, was the chief speaker. Previous to the speaking program at the court house about 20 men met at Von Berg's restaurant for supper and a short business meeting.

Charles H. Weidner, president of the club, presided at the business meeting and Willis Myers, chairman for January, presided at the session in the court house.

At the business meeting it was agreed that the breeders and hatcherymen present would sell a limited number of chicks to 4-H Club members during the coming season at a reduction of 25 per cent below the regular prices. They decided to sell not more than 150 chicks to one 4-H Club member at the reduced rate.

This was done to encourage the boys and girls of the county to buy high grade chicks from local sources. The breeders and hatcherymen, who wish to cooperate in the plan, may have their name included by letting Mr. Joy, the county 4-H leader, know about it.

R. Kaplan was asked to give a brief report of the Mid-Hudson egg auction. He reported that the volume of eggs being received is exceeding all expectations. Last week 670 cases of eggs were sold and on the Tuesday auction of this week, 415 cases were handled. Because of the large volume being handled, it may be necessary for the directors to change the collection days from Monday and Thursday to Sunday and Wednesday.

Albert Kurdt, manager of the Farm Bureau was called upon to say a few words about the "Chick Manner" being put on by the Farm Bureau poultry committee. He explained the program and invited all those present to enroll in the campaign and receive the 15 lessons on growing chicks, free of charge. Enrollment is open to all Ulster county poultrymen. It is not limited to Farm Bureau members.

Willis Myers then introduced Dr. Heuser who gave a very interesting talk on the "Science of Nutrition." He outlined briefly the changes that have taken place during the past 25 years and explained some of the problems confronting the poultryman. He explained that the composition of various feeds is constantly changing due to changes in the process of manufacturing. Most of the time was devoted to answering questions asked by those present. In this way many individual problems were answered in regard to many phases of the feeding problem.

Kenneth DuBois of New Paltz was elected as the chairman for the February meeting which will be held in Kingston on February 21. Prof. L. M. Hurd of Cornell will be the speaker.

A Fine Window Display.
The show window of Flanagan, Archer and Watkins on Wall street is creating considerable favorable comment not only for its timeliness in suggesting to the men folks what to wear to the Shriner's ball at the new armory Friday evening but its artistic appeal as well. The display was planned and arranged by Donald Zucca, son of Paul Zucca, the well known musician whose orchestra will play at the Shriner's ball.

Treatment of Acne.
Acne is an infection of the skin, usually affecting the face and back. It is often due to infection with the germ known as "staphylococcus" and "streptococcus." Infected tissue may be a contributing cause for the condition. The treatment for acne should be carried out under the direction of the physician. It includes the use of antiseptic solutions or salves, regulation of the diet, and sometimes X-ray and ultra-violet ray treatments.

VALLEY BEEKEEPERS TO MEET DURING SHOW
The beekeepers of the Hudson Valley will meet at the Y. M. C. A. in Kingston, Wednesday afternoon, January 25, at 3 o'clock, in conjunction with the Horticultural Show. The various county groups now organized plan to cooperate and form a single regional organization. After a short business meeting several speakers of particular interest to beekeepers will appear on the program, including Prof. George H. Rea and Dr. Phillips of the New York State College of Agriculture. Within the next few years, the necessity of fruit growers and beekeepers to work together has become very evident. As the number of wild insects is reduced, due to intensive cultivation and constant spraying, fruit growers have found it necessary to rely almost entirely on the honey bee for cross pollination of fruit blossoms. Beekeeping is an art which requires considerable skill and experience, therefore most fruit growers want the trained beekeepers to care for the bees.

Two periods of the horticultural meeting will be devoted to a discussion of bees in relation to the pollination of fruit. L. H. MacDaniels will give a talk on "Further experience with the pollination problem," and George H. Rea will discuss "The practical aspect of keeping bees in the orchard." Both talks will take place Wednesday afternoon, January 25 at the Ritz Theatre.

ECONOMY OR MORE TAXES?

After weeks of argument about the federal budget and trying out every imaginable device to produce new revenue, the situation lately has been cloudier than ever. Every new demand for a sales tax or a higher income tax rouses a storm of opposition. As the quest continues, the public wonders more and more why the federal government cannot do the bulk of its budget-balancing by the simple process used now so generally by the state and local governments—by economizing, eliminating present burdens for the taxpayers instead of imposing new ones. This wonder has grown since the recent announcement that Congress hoped to cut $100,000,000, a mere drop in the bucket, from present expenditures, when the public hoped for a saving of half a billion to a billion.

There was new hope stirred, then, by the announcement of Congressman Rainey of Illinois, that Congress could balance the budget without any additional taxes by a tax on beer. This would mean a very drastic cut, indeed, from the present budget. And such a cut would have to come mainly from the heaviest items, military and veterans' expenditures, which now constitute about half the budget. It remains to be seen whether Congress has the courage to do this.

PRESIDENTIAL BURDENS

Calvin Coolidge's untimely death, though it may have had no connection with the cares of the presidency, naturally renews criticism of the heavy demands made by that office, and suggestions for lightening them. One of the most natural and appealing proposals is an increase in the number of vice-presidents. This idea is taken from the current practice in private business. Large banks, insurance companies or other business institutions may have half a dozen or more vice-presidents sharing the duties which otherwise would press upon the chief executive.

The presidency has come to embody at least three offices. The President is expected to be at the same time the chief executive officer of the government, the leader of his party and the chief link between the government and the people. This last function is really two in one, because it covers governmental publicity and social contacts.

None of these functions could be surrendered entirely. But it might be possible for the President to concentrate on the main job of administration and ease up on the others, delegating to subordinates the political, publicity and social duties. And it might not be a bad idea at all to dignify these functions by vice presidencies, of which one might be elective as at present, and the others appointive. The chairmanship of the Senate is an accidental and rather unimportant function which might be assumed by any of the vice presidents.

AN ERA OF SURVEYS

Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, president of the Union Theological Seminary, thinks the world has got itself all tangled up with studies of this and that which lead nowhere. In a recent sermon, he said:

The chief peril of our contemporary academic life is that we discuss and analyze our faith instead of employing it in achievements for God, that we appraise the movements of the day instead of flinging ourselves into the enterprise of making a juster world. Today we have surveys. Everything is analysis and appraisal, but no activity.

It is certainly a fact that American pigeons and wastebaskets are pretty well staffed with reports of commissions, surveys sponsored by philanthropic foundations, analyses of industry and education, and religion and health and any number of other phases of life. There is a lot of good stuff in those reports, too, but the material which ought to further the solution of many a trying problem—recommendations which, if properly carried out, would end much injustice and suffering and promote health and happiness.

Why don't we use them? For one thing, it is much easier to make a survey than to make its recommendations effective. A few intelligent persons can study conditions and point out faults and corrections. It takes intelligent voters, intelligent legislators and intelligent officials to put over the suggested reforms. It also takes time and good will and co-operation.

INEXPERIENCED NATION

In a letter to the New York Times, a reader makes some thought-provoking criticisms of the foreign policy of the United States. So far, he says, this country has started too many things without finishing them, has given too much good advice which it did not follow itself. That is why, with such a lot of good intentions, America has not got very far yet in co-operating with other nations to maintain world peace or end the economic depression. He has a generous explanation for our wavering policy.

America as a nation has not adjusted herself as yet to the world responsibilities to which her immense natural resources and cultural aspirations entitle her. Her statesmen, writers and diplomats are often called upon to solve questions for which their own nation's experience does not give them any precedent, while their advice may be sought solely because America is so large, rich and superficially independent.

Maybe there is something in it. Children who grow rapidly, and look older than they are, often are expected to behave with the responsibility and judgment of maturity. Perhaps, in spite of the kind things said of this country by foreign observers who have regarded it as a mature nation, it really is still in its adolescence, lacking experience and judgment. But we hate to admit it.

HOPE STRONGER THAN DRUGS.

During the flu epidemic of 1918 I saw a patient fight for his life for a number of days after all hope had been given up by his physician, and the reason that he made a successful recovery was because the physician never once let him suspect that he wouldn't get better. The physician told him he was real sick, that the battle was a hard one, and that everything was being done and all that could be done was to "stand by."

Dr. Axel Munthe says, "There is no drug as powerful as hope, and the slightest sign of pessimism in the face or words of a doctor may cost his patient his life."

"The ability to bring about a reaction of hope in a patient is one of the greatest talents a physician can possess. The doctor knows the cause of the ailment and the best or regular treatment for it; if he can add to this the personality to inspire hope in the patient, he has Nature on his side and she sets to work to assist in the cure."

Now that Dr. Walter B. Cannon, Harvard, has shown that the emotions can affect practically every organ and process in the body, there is no question but that the emotion of hope may set in motion certain forces within the body that would cause vital glands and organs to begin again their natural work. Many profound forces are put in motion by the human mind that build or tear down one's vitality.

Dr. L. E. Whetstone, Rushville, Indiana, points out that many a battle against disease has been lost because the family, friends, and physician created a gloomy atmosphere in the patient; and many have passed triumphantly through an illness buoyed up by hope and a cheerful, encouraging physician.

This means then that family, friends, and the physician must be ever cheerful and hopeful when with the patient, because the patient, even though seriously ill, gathers knowledge of his true condition by the manner and actions of those about him.

I believe it would be well for all of us to bear this in mind in our attitude toward those who are sick mentally or physically. It is this very hope placed in the hearts of sufferers that enables ministers, priests and mental healers to bring about wonderful cures when apparently there was no possible chance for recovery.

Truly, there is no drug as powerful as hope.

SYNOPSIS: Perrell Armitage, a young man, is in love with Barbara, a young woman, who is engaged to a man named Mark. Perrell is determined to win Barbara, and he is willing to do anything to achieve his goal. He is a clever and resourceful man, and he is not afraid to use his wits to get what he wants. He is a man of action, and he is not afraid to take risks. He is a man who is willing to do whatever it takes to win the woman he loves.

MARK AT HIS WORST

"Don't you come to the first!" Mark took no notice of him but waited until Armitage repeated the invitation; then he came forward and leaned against a chair back. Perrell did not trouble to suppress a chuckle. Showing the hired man his place in front of his employer, oh! Next instant, that Armitage, oblivious of the by-play, was handing a couple of letters.

"If you have a few minutes to spare, Lodely—"

"My dear Armitage, we're agreed, surely, that my time is yours."

"I wrote to Miss Quentin, as you suggested, about the studio, but she is unable to come. I wrote again, a day or two ago, but she is still unwilling to undertake the commission."

Perrell stared at the man. Armitage's voice had given him away. It was a woman.

Lodely was murmuring, through his smile—

"It really doesn't matter. I've looked at Malavie's handwriting and it will do beautifully for everything except work. And, for work, I can carry on where I am."

"In Armitage's room?" enquired Perrell, still smiling.

"In Armitage's room," assented Lodely, still smiling, ever so slightly, his teeth.

"Then, I've also been in communication with Sir Robert Philby," went on Armitage. "He was a friend of my father's."

"Yes? Another millionaire, I presume?"

"No. Sir Robert isn't a millionaire and I don't expect he ever will be; his interests don't lie in money-making. He is, or was, a very famous bone-setter."

"Oh, a quack!" said Mark indignantly.

"Sir Robert Philby is recognized by the medical profession," Armitage said patiently. "I don't think he's called a quack nowadays. At any rate, he has brought off some marvelous cures. I wanted him to come and see you."

A flash passed over Mark's face. It was gone in an instant, but it softened Perrell into sympathy again. Poor devil, he had known hope and longing, under that bitterness!

"He is rather eccentric. He—"

Armitage hesitated. "He says he hasn't come up to town for many years and he'd rather we went to see him. He mentions next Tuesday. He offers to put us up."

Perrell made a quick, involuntary movement. He knew exactly what was going to happen.

"As it happens, next Tuesday is impossible. That's the night of my party," smiled Mark.

"But, good God!—your party? You can have a party any night!"

"I don't think so. I'm booked for every other evening and I've made a good deal of splash about my Tuesday night studio parties. This, as the first of them, is the most important."

"More important than the chance of being made a sound man instead of—"

Armitage caught back the word. Perrell, his eyes on his shoes, tried to focus Armitage's mind with his own. Damn it all, telepathy was possible, why shouldn't it work between them now? Armitage—Armitage—stick to your wheel—don't let the little whelp spoil your nerve.

"We'll leave it for the time being, Lodely, shall we?"

Much better. Perrell nodded solemnly at his shoes. That was much more the way to handle him. Sound idea, telepathy!

"My dear Armitage, don't put yourself to such trouble in the matter. Poor though I am, I have been examined by several men of genuine repute; and they are agreed that my case is beyond them."

"Wonderful how sweet-tempered you always keep!" put in Perrell. "Example to the rest of us, absolutely!"

"Besides I must ask myself, Armitage, whether I can conscientiously accept this further charity at your hands. You are interested in my welfare solely because of any talent I may possess. Aren't you?"

Armitage opened the door. Perrell, watching both men, knew that Armitage would not yet be allowed to go.

"By the way, Armitage, I should be much obliged if you would write to Barbara again. On second thought I can't occupy your bedroom for the whole year of my stay. If Barbara can fit me up a workshop somewhere, and honestly, she's the only person who knows what I need, I can get down to hard work."

"I've written to Miss Quentin twice. She's quite firm in her refusal. It would be useless for me to—"

"Perhaps it would. Perhaps it would be useless for you." The emphasis was delicate but unmistakable. "I must do what I ought to have done at once. What you mind sending the wire for me?"

"The wire? To Miss Quentin?"

"Of course. Just wire 'Come' and sign it 'Mark'."

"You wish me to send Miss Quentin a telegram saying no more than 'Come, Mark'?"

"What more need I say? You don't think it enough?"

There was no answer. Armitage, pipe drawing very satisfactorily, hands quite steady again, walked out of the room.

Perrell left the fire for the window and stared out at the inevitable London garden; shrubs, gravel, statuary green with damp. "I shall have to trouble you for a little brandy," came from the chair.

Perrell wandered back without haste and regarded the guest closely. Not until he had observed the blueness round the lips and the sharp lines drawn from nose to chin, did he ring and order the stimulant.

"For God's sake, hurry up!" implored the artist feebly. "I—I get these fainting attacks—"

Perrell was quite unalarmed.

"You ought to take life more quietly," he advised. "So long as you go about trying to get yourself murdered, your heart is bound to do overtime."

He was gratified to catch a glimpse of undisguised hatred before the fair head fell back upon the cushions and the long hands slipped and hung loosely to the floor.

Left, as monuments to their dead, by an unknown race known now as the Mound Builders, thousands of conical and pyramid-shaped earthen mounds dot the landscape of what is now the State of Ohio. These mounds are far more numerous and, according to some archaeologists, some are even older than the great pyramids of Egypt.

Some of the mounds are square at the base, tapering to an apex like the Egyptian pyramids, others have eight-sided bases, while others are cone shaped. There are also many other mounds of odd shapes, chief among these is the "Great Serpent" mound in Adams county, Ohio. This is a huge serpent of earth. It is 1346 feet long, the head is 30 feet across and five feet high, and the widely opened jaws measure 75 feet across.

The unique Bible owned by Mrs. C. A. Carter of Fall River, Mass., contains 876 pages, each measuring one and three quarters inches by one and an eighth inches. The volume is half an inch thick. It was printed by David Bryce & Son of Glasgow.

Lead in Pencil Not Lead, but Pulverized Graphite

The lead in "lead pencils" is not lead, but graphite. When this mineral was discovered it was named "plumbago," from the Latin word for lead, and its use for writing purposes was perceived, the articles made were called pencils.

When first made, the graphite was cut into thin sheets and then into strips for encasing in wood. The pencils made by this crude method were very expensive, for more than half the material was wasted in the process. Consequently very few people could afford to use them.

Come, a Frenchman, discovered, during the last century, how to pulverize graphite and mix it with fine clay in varying proportions so as to produce pencils of different hardness with uniform quality throughout and without wastage of material. This marked the arrival of the modern pencil.

Only one kind of wood, that of the pencil cedar tree, is really suitable for encasing the leads. This tree was in danger of extinction some twenty years ago, owing to the enormous demand for pencils. As a precaution, metal and paper-covered pencils came into use.

The degrees of hardness in pencils are indicated by lettering.—Montreal Herald.

Changes Brought About in Meaning of Words

"Interference" is not the only word which has gone to the demitison bow-wow with regard to derivation and generally accepted meaning. Archbishop Trench collected an interesting list of verbal backsliders. Even "measles," it seems, was once leprosy, or more often the leper himself, and in an old edition of the Bible we read, "Forsooth he was a strong man and riche, but mesell."

"And what a mess we find ourselves in when we inquire into the actual origins of the word 'mess,'" writes a columnist in the Manchester (Eng.) Guardian. "'Mess,' according to Trench, used to be applied to a quaternion, or group of four persons or things. (A 'mess' at the Inns of Court still consists of four diners.) There lacks a fourth thing to bake up the mess, writes Latimer, and Shakespeare in III Henry VI, Act I, Sc. 4 asks, 'Where are your messes of soe to back you now?' the said 'mess' consisting of Edward, George, Richard and Edmund."

Egyptians Loved Dogs

Although dog bones and pictures of dogs unearthed by explorers have proved that dogs were domesticated in very early times, the first traces of distinct breeds appeared among the records of such highly civilized peoples as the ancient Assyrians and Egyptians. The Assyrians are known to have had two breeds, the greyhound and mastiff; while pictures found on Egyptian monuments 5,000 years old depict several breeds, varying from hounds closely resembling the English greyhound to a short-legged toy dog. It is apparent that the Egyptians of that time not only used dogs in hunting, but kept them as pets and house dogs.—Detroit News.

First Cigarette

The origin of the first cigarette is not definitely known, but according to one authority the cigarette was invented by an Egyptian soldier in 1832, 100 years ago. Because Ibrahim Pasha had successfully stormed the Syrian fortress of St. Jean d'Arc in that year, he was rewarded by the Egyptian viceroy with a wagon load of tobacco and pipes. But before the wagon reached headquarters it was struck by an enemy grenade and the pipes were all smashed. Not to be deprived of a smoke, a passing Egyptian soldier made a tube out of Indian paper used for wrapping up powder, and packed it with some of the tobacco. He lighted it and found it good.—Montreal Herald.

Tennessee's Own Lake

Reel Foot lake in Tennessee is the only one of any size in that state. It was formed as a result of the great earthquake in that region in 1811, which produced other similar basins. It is a large shallow lake, 13 miles long and 3 miles in maximum width. It is situated in Obion and Lake counties, in the northwestern section of the state, and discharges through the Reel Foot river into Obion river, a tributary of the Mississippi.

"Do, re, me, fox, so, la, ti, do," sang Junior lustily.

New Zealand Had No Animals

New Zealand is the only country in the world that did not have domestic animals until they were imported there by man from other countries. It was inhabited by large numbers of birds, some small, primitive reptiles and one species of frog, but the only mammals that are truly natives of New Zealand are two species of bats.

Andrew, King of Hungary.

Hanged by Conspirators

Andrew of Hungary, husband of Queen Joan I of Naples, was hanged from the balcony of a monastery. Joan was queen of Naples in her own right, as highest of her grandfather, King Robert the Wise, and Andrew was regarded by her and her partisans among the Neapolitan as a king-consort. Andrew's brother, the powerful King Louis of Hungary, objected to this arrangement, and finally persuaded or coerced the queen to recognize Andrew as equal partner in the title and power of royalty. Elaborate preparations were made for the joint coronation of queen and king on September 19, 1345. On the evening preceding the momentous day Joan and Andrew with a number of courtiers retired to the monastery of San Pietro a Majella, at Aversa, ten miles from Naples, to escape the city heat. At midnight a group of conspirators, probably instigated by Joan, dragged the king from his bed and hanged him from the balcony of the monks' garden. Queen Joan, known to history and romance as "the beautiful queen," was eighteen years old at this time and had been queen regent for two years. Andrew was about the same age.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

By The Associated Press

Seattle—Two men were working on a moving street car. Quietly they took out the electric light bulbs from the rear end, unscrewed the brass fixtures and doorknobs and then began removing handrails from the seats. "Hey," a puzzled passenger finally yelled to the conductor, "they are taking your trolley to pieces." The operator stopped the car by the nearest policeman, but the two culprits escaped.

Toothsome Fare:

Chicago—Flashing a dazzling smile—he had two gold teeth—Peter Hourhoulis hailed a taxi-cab, and went places to the clicking tune of $1.55. When Jack Kastrow, the cab driver, demanded the fare, Peter didn't have it. "Here," he said, removing the two teeth. "Take these for your pay. They're worth more than $1.55." Kastrow couldn't use the teeth, so Hourhoulis was charged with beating a taxi bill.

Bygone Are Bygone.

Escanaba, Mich.—Two fishermen buried the past as they dropped their lines through a hole in the Bay of De Noc. One was Circuit Judge Frank A. Bell. The other was a man whom the judge had sentenced to six months imprisonment a year ago. The judge knocked at the door of the other man's shanty, was reminded of the sentence, and accepted a hospitable welcome.

Votes Don't Count.

St. Paul—Election returns come in slowly in some of the northwest sections of Minnesota—in fact, sometimes they never come in. W. H. Borgen of Duluth, St. Louis county auditor, disclosed here today that returns in the November, 1928, election in one precinct, never have been received. There are about 25 voters in the precinct.

Ballots were sent to the precinct in the north woods wilds of the Canadian border, by railroad, automobile and canoe, but never came back. "We just forgot about it," Borgen said.

Could Be Cleaner

Chicago—Maybe Americans still are the soap and water champions of the world, but, said Henry P. Reger, talking before the Illinois Master Plumbers' Association yesterday, there remain some 5,000,000 homes in the United States sans bath tubs.

Dark Dealings

Beloit, Wis.—There is, Beloit officials decided today, a definite relation between electric lights and crime waves.

As an economy move, the council ordered street lights turned off at 11 p. m. in outlying residential districts. Doubling the lights was expected to save $2,200 annually. The first night burglars broke into 20 homes and garages. The residents complained so much that the council ordered the lights turned back on.

Please Remit

Hartford, Conn.—A horse owned by the city collapsed and died on the property of Joseph H. Murphy. The city's claim committee has received the following bill from Murphy:

"For the use of my property as a veterinary hospital and morgue on the above date and the damage caused by the above... $10."

She Was Prepared

Johnstown, Pa.—A few hours after she completed her funeral shroud, Mrs. Josiah Keim, 71, fell downstairs and died from a broken neck.

Fashions by Eleanor Gunn

Some Subtle Distinctions
Between Young and Mature Fashions

The Two-Way Collar

New York—Elbow-length sleeves have had sufficient encouragement to feel assured of a welcome. In Southern wardrobes, they are as numerous as the advance collections for cruise and Southern wear led us to expect.

A sure proof that the short sleeve is here, is that even the older and more conservative women are tentatively poring with the fashion by cutting off their sleeves inch by inch, until already they are three-quarter length which, if you ask me, is the ugliest length of all.

In order to avoid that completely covered-up look, sleeves are being chopped off as a sacrifice to the mania for raised necklines. Older women sometimes find this line hard to wear and are decidedly more partial to the two-way kind that may be worn open or shut, high or low, as the case and the occasion demand.

Evening dresses, once so indiscreetly low at the back, are now discretion itself. To add to their new dignity, they are topped by some sort of ruche, or by a scarf which, in some extreme cases, has widened to the size of a small shawl.

There seems to be a feeling that we have quickly tired of the wide shoulderline in its most extreme form and that we are not going in for top-heavy silhouettes, either. Things do continue to happen to the shoulder and upper bodice sections, but they are things that tend to lighten rather than increase the load the shoulders are already carrying.

Women seem peculiarly loyal to revers, and the younger set seem particularly partial to capelets. The answer to this difference of opinion is found in the effect of these lines on the figure, the capelet having an unfortunate tendency to widen it.

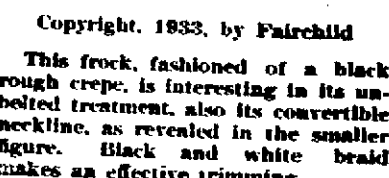

Smart Women Still Wool-Minded

For sportswear, a woman has her favored feature, judging by the choice of fleeced woollens (very effective in a gold tone that is now sponsored) of tweeds that achieve an indefinite striped appearance by the use of uneven yarns and of the length sleeves among more mature women.

The first impression one gets of the new prints in their liveliness, not in the actual colors themselves, wear pay considerable attention to but in the patterns. Whether in details such as seaming, and are pre-checked, stripes or plaids—the three favored in rabbit's hair mixtures and classifications—they emphasize gay-crope worsteds or matelasse effects.

This frock, fashioned of a black rough crepe, is interesting in its unbelieved treatment, also its convertible neckline, as revealed in the smaller figure. Black and white braid makes an effective trimming.

Job of Japs Attack State S. Factory Branch

Available Records of Slinger Sewing Machine Company Destroyed by Mob of Nearly 200 Disgraced Employees.

Yokohama, Jan. 18 (AP).—Police held 133 Japanese for participation in a mid-day raid on the Yokohama branch of the Slinger Sewing Machine Company. All available property and valuable records were destroyed in the attack by a mob of nearly 200 disgraced employees.

Richard McCleary, representative of the New York headquarters of the Slinger Company, who was in Japan in connection with its labor difficulties, said the loss was "likely to be several thousand yen." (The yen is equivalent to about 20 cents.)

The greatest part of the loss was the records of installment sale contracts and other documents which the rioters tore to bits and scattered over the place.

Three of the Slinger Company's Japanese employees and four Japanese guards were seriously injured.

No Americans or other foreign employees of the concern were hurt.

McCleary charged that police protection was inadequate.

"I am unable to understand how nearly 200 men were able to assemble and raid the premises in the heart of Yokohama without police being able to halt them," he said.

Other Slinger employees alleged they had reason to believe the police had knowledge that the raid might occur.

State Troopers Arrested 3 Youths

Arthur E. Thomas of Crown street and J. Hollister Steen of Albany avenue, students at the Kingston high school, and George Hunt of West Kelly street, a student at School No. 5, were placed under arrest today by Corporal Baker and State Trooper Kline on a charge of shooting and damaging railroad signals at the Wilbur bridge in the town of Lopus.

The State Troopers called at police headquarters here and stated they desired to arrest the three youths. Arrangements were made with the high school authorities to have the three students report at the city hall also to have the student at the high school report.

Later this afternoon the three youths were taken over to Port Ewen to be arraigned before Judge Henry McKennie.

Vatican City, Jan. 18 (AP).—The observance of the official Vatican newspaper, today published a document signed by King Boris and Queen Joanna of Bulgaria which annulled the Pope's dispensation for a Catholic marriage and promising that all children will be baptized and reared as Catholics. The newspaper also published a document stating dispensation on this condition.

King Boris of Bulgaria is a member of the Orthodox, or Eastern, church. Queen Joanna, the daughter of King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Elena of Italy, was reared a Catholic.

Earlier this week reports from American City were that the Pope was making a protest to King Boris concerning the Orthodox baptism of the princess-born Princess Marie Louise of Bulgaria. The princess, who was born last week, was baptized last Sunday in the palace at Sofia.

Press Lauds Plays of Children's Theatre

Clare Tree Major's production of "Sara Crewe," which will be presented by the Children's Theatre Company of New York at the Broadway Theatre on Friday afternoon at four o'clock is winning critical and popular acclaim wherever it is being presented. Press and public unite in pronouncing it one of the loveliest of all child plays.

The Boston Transcript reviewer says in part: "In Sara Crewe, Frances Hodgson Burnett has created an authentic and lovely child, who was able to endure misfortune with a gallant spirit because of her imagination and her sympathy with others. From the luxuries of the birth-day celebration with its feast and the gifts of the life-size doll and rich wardrobe, the jewel box, and the packages of story books, Sara sank to running errands in broken shoes and thankfully eating cold potatoes. Nothing could tame her indomitable spirit, however, or quench her soaring imagination which the slavery of Becky, found such difficulty in keeping up with. Gene Magnus, who bears an extraordinary resemblance to Reginald Birch's illustrations for the original story, was Sara Crewe to the life. Becky's grotesqueries and Cockney accent were well handled by Dorothy Major. Sara's neighbors and fellow boarders were equally realistic."

The Scranton Republican commenting editorially on "Sara Crewe," which was presented in Scranton on January 7, said, "Delightful to the

Democrats Abandon Budget Balance Plan

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP).—Congressional Democrats today abandoned hope for enactment of budget balancing legislation at this session, and acknowledged plans are set for a special session of the new congress to tackle the task.

Twelve strategically situated house members, belonging to the ways and means committee that has jurisdiction over revenue legislation, agreed to drop all tax proposals between now and March 4.

Asked by newspapermen when a special session will be summoned, Speaker Garner said "I could tell you but I won't."

The plain implication was that arrangements are under way, and that those in charge of party affairs are looking to such a session to do what they feel is impossible of accomplishment as things now stand on Capitol Hill.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

The attempt to defeat Diddrikson since she turned professional is not confined altogether to her erstwhile comrades of the Amateur Athletic Union.

Taking the results of our poll, hailing the Texas Babe, as a text, one Ryan of the Pacific Northwest inquires through I. H. Gregory of the Portland Oregonian just what it is that has made Diddrikson so remarkable an athlete.

"What," he writes, "is so very thrilling about seeing even Babe tear down the track at a speed about equal to the average football player in his full football equipment? Or heaving a javelin or high jumping or taking the hurdles with performance which would give just fair competition to the average high school youth? If Babe would take up wrestling and boxing, she could probably win new championships—not many women go in for these sports, either.

"On the other hand there is this to be said for swimming, golf and tennis, as women's sports. First, women can do them well, giving men real competition; second, they can do them gracefully. Third, compared with track, the competitive field is tremendous.

"Funny no 'sport expert' ever considered this angle. Babe Diddrikson is the greatest all-around athlete her sex has ever known," according to Mr. Gould—double Olympic champion, he reminds us. "Not a word about our own northwest swimmer, Helene Madison, who not only was a double Olympic champion but also was one of a championship relay team in the same Olympics. And perhaps it is because Helen Willis has been so outstanding for so long and so shuns publicity or Virginia Van Winkle falls to boast like a grade school bully that they are rated far below the Babe in the vote."

Give Babe Her Due

I agree with the theory that the feminine track athlete's place is in the home or the tennis courts or perhaps, by now, the motion pictures, but Diddrikson's all-around achievements scarcely can be belittled on that old-fashioned account. Any girl who can capture a national track meet all by herself, winning six events, needs no rebuttal. The only reason she didn't win three Olympic crowns was because (1) she was abruptly ruled out for "diving" in the high jump and (2) she was barred from competing in more than three contests.

The Babe's basketball ability is celebrated in the Southwest and here, again, she is a star in the rougher sphere of sport. She has played football. Some of our better known sporting writers, who have played golf with Diddrikson, say she could be a champion at that sport. She can throw a baseball further than most men. She might, with proper training, give the top flight of women tennis and swimming stars a brisk contest.

"What if?" we may agree, but give the Babe her due: she is now doing only what Madison, Bauesch, Holm, Tolan and most of our other Olympic or college athletic stars are doing to capitalize their name and fame.

Yankees Offered Babe Ruth $50,000

New York, Jan. 18 (AP)—It was an offer of $50,000 for 1933 that Babe Ruth rejected so quickly and vehemently.

The Babe himself revealed the exact terms the New York Yankees had offered and put himself firmly on record that he would not accept any $25,000 cut in the $75,000 salary he received last year.

Both Lou Gehrig, slugging first baseman, and Vernon Gomez, slender southpaw, indicated they had received offers from the club they considered inadequate.

FAMILIES HANG ON TO THEIR MOTORS

Shrinkage in Licenses Less Than Was Expected.

New York—That the automobile industry has a firm basis for recovery is indicated in a report issued by James Dalton, editor of Motor. The export of 1932 shows that there is still in operation one car for every six of our population. The figures show that the American people regard their cars as an essential part of their lives and cling to them as long as possible. The record of 1932 car registrations reported by Motor discloses that there are still 30,929,091 passenger cars in operation in the United States. Counting the 3,532,292 trucks that are in operation, the total is 34,461,383 vehicles. This represents a decrease of 1,631,730 car registrations, or 6.1 per cent, from 1931, but since 1932 marks the culmination of the business recession, the decline was less than might have been expected. The trucks registered in 1932 numbered 3,532,292, which is 6.1 per cent over 1931.

A drop of only 2,192,438 car licenses from the 1929 peak is an unexpectedly small shrinkage and provides substantial evidence of the importance of individual transportation.

The editor of Motor points out that the losses in passenger car registrations since 1929 reflect with fair accuracy the relative pitch of the depression in different states. Broadly speaking, the Industrial East—New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island—and the west coast held up the best. The plight of the farmer is clearly revealed in the drop in car licenses in agricultural sections. The states that had the worst decline in the three years' span were the southern and western agricultural states.

Numerically, the heaviest losses were: Michigan, 220,000 cars; Texas, 105,000; Ohio, 133,000; Oklahoma, 129,000; Iowa, North Carolina, Illinois and Wisconsin more than 100,000 cars.

It is not to be concluded from these drops in car registrations since 1929 that more than 2,000,000 cars have gone to the scrap heap. A large proportion of them, while serviceable, are in storage because the owners are unable to pay operating costs.

Woman Is Given High Rank in Legion of Honor

Paris—An old tradition which dates back to Napoleon and which kept French women from rising in grade in the Legion of Honor has been shattered by the award of the rank of commander of the Legion to a woman, for the second time in history.

Mme. Philippe de Vilmorin, wealthy business woman and one of the world's greatest dealers in seeds and grains, has been promoted from officer to commander. Joining in that rank Countess de Noailles, poetess, the only other woman commander in the Legion's history.

The promotion came in the distribution of 800 ribbons and rosettes of the Legion of Honor to reward services rendered towards the success of the Colonial exposition. Mme. de Vilmorin had created the floral decoration of the exposition grounds.

Widowed during the war, Mme. de Vilmorin left the front, where she had won citations as a war nurse, and took charge of a two-hundred-year-old grain firm.

She traveled through Africa, India, China, Java, Egypt, Australia, and the Orient to select and improve the seeds of tobacco, rice, coffee, peanuts, and other colonial crops. She operates agronomic laboratories and largely was responsible for saving the French cut-flower industry from ruinous Dutch and Italian competition.

Sculptor Glad He Has Carved His Own Tomb

Paris—"Yes, I am happy. I have just finished carving my own tomb that I designed a year ago," said the world famous sculptor, Denys Puech, on arriving here from Rome where he has long been director of the Villa Medicea, maintained by the French Institute for students who have won the Prix de Rome.

On the sarcophagus of the monument M. Puech has prepared for himself, sits an angel waiting the last call. Illustrative of "my faith in divine justice," the sculptor explained.

"Do not think," he continued, "that my work made me sad. To the contrary, I worked very gaily. I shall sleep there very well, knowing my last resting place will be just as I want it."

...The habit of

KEEPING CLEAN

IT IS no easy job, at best, to keep children clean. It is particularly difficult to form the cleanliness habit if washing is made uncomfortable by the lack of hot water. For that reason alone, every home in which there are growing children should be equipped with automatic hot water supply, to take discomfort out of washing.

is easier to learn when hot water is AUTOMATIC

Try automatic water-heating in your home for a few weeks. Notice how much difference it makes in the willingness of your children to keep themselves clean. Notice too, how much easier it makes your housework at many points. And note, finally, how few pennies per day it really costs to have hot water always ready at the faucet.
